This approach was outlined by U.S. President Lyndon Johnson in a speech at the dedication of a research library named after the late Gen. George C. Marshall in Lexington, Virginia, yesterday, according to news reports received from that city.

Devoting his speech to the theme of "peaceful evolution" of the East European countries, Johnson talked about some nations of East Europe which are beginning to "reassert their own identity." He said that the United States "will continue to build bridges across the gulf which has divided us (the United States--NCNA) from East Europe. They will be bridges of increased trade, of ideas, of visitors and of humanitarian aims."

The United States, he continued, would "open the minds of a new generation (in East European countries--NCNA) to the values and visions of Western civilization," and would lead them to believe that they, too, belong to that "civilization." It would "give freer play to the powerful forces of legitimate national pride."

He went on to say that the United States would also demonstrate to those countries "that identity of interests and the prospects of progress for East Europe lie in a wider relationship with the West."

He made it clear that this approach for "new relationships" with the East European countries does not mean any change in the U.S. policies of aggression, but that it serves these policies. These overtures to East Europe, he stressed, were being carried out "within the framework of our unalterable commitment to the defense of Europe and the reunification of Germany."

He pointed out that "wise and skillful development of relationships with the nations of East Europe can speed the day when Germany will be reunited." He said that the United States would see to it that "all of Europe may be joined in a society of freedom."

ARAB BOYCOTT OF TOKYO OLYMPICS SUPPORTED

Athletic Group's Statement

Peking NCNA International Service in English 1919 GMT 24 May 1964--B

(Text) Peking, 24 May--Following is a statement by the spokesman of the All-China Athletic Federation on the boycott of the coming Olympic Games in Tokyo by 13 Arab states:

At the Arab League Council meeting on 20 May, 13 Arab states unanimously decided that they would boycott the 18th Olympic Games scheduled for October in Tokyo, Japan, if Indonesia was not invited to participate in them. This decision gives expression to the just stand of the Arab people to uphold Afro-Asian people's solidarity and to oppose the peremptory actions of the International Olympic Committee under the thumb of U.S. imperialism. The All-China Athletic Federation hereby declares its firm support for this decision.

It is well-known that under the direction of U.S. imperialism, the International Olympic Committee has done many bad things. It discriminates against the Afro-Asian peoples and all new emerging forces; and it monopolizes and manipulates international sports and obstructs the development of sports in Asia and Africa and of all new emerging forces. Under the slogan that politics should not meddle with sports, it is actually pursuing various political schemes to antagonize the new emerging forces. Events have proved more than once that once that the International Olympic Committee has degenerated into a political tool in the hands of U.S. imperialism.

The U.S. imperialists tried to undermine the unity and friendship of the countries and people of Asia and Africa over the fourth Asian games held in the Indonesian capital, Djakarta, in August 1962. In order to safeguard Afro-Asian unity and the dignity of their own country, the Indonesian Government and people refused to allow Israel and the Chiang Kai-shek clique in Taiwan to participate in the fourth Asian games. This was an absolutely righteous action and a hard blow at the manipulation of international sports organizations by the U.S. imperialists and at their political maneuvering against China and the Arab countries. This righteous action of Indonesia has won loud praises from the people of
